

My grandmother never wanted to be a burden. If this law was passed 10 years ago when she was in hospice, I could see her feeling pressured to die so she wouldn't be a burden. I don't want to do that to our elderly.

You think this bill will only help people who have the idea themselves, or are in great pain, but it can also create horrible pressure on someone. Guilting them with what they are told is the "responsible" decision. And we all want to be responsible don't we?
