

I am a 69 year old woman who has helped my sick, dying pets have peaceful, painless deaths. I believe strongly that humans should be allowed to have end of life care in the same thoughtful manner. After all we are supposedly the intelligent ones. All my life I have heard stories of the horrible slides to death that people suffering from extremely painful cancers have had to endure. In order to be able to say coherent and loving goodbyes they have to dial back their pain medicines so they suffer. Enough I say, let us pass a compassionate, caring and thoughtful bill for who should be our “venerated elders” or anyone suffering from what I refer to as a dread disease.

Thank you.
