

I am strongly in favor of HB 5417 An Act Concerning End-Of-Life Care.

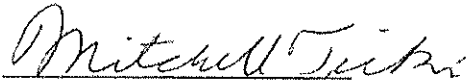

Why should the state be able to deny a terminally ill person the right to end their suffering and to end their life in a dignified manner?

It seems inhumane to add to the suffering of a mentally competent terminally ill person.

There are sufficient safeguards in the bill to prevent abuse and the procedures have been pretested with no serious problems in several other states, including California, Oregon, Vermont and Colorado.

As you ponder this bill please consider if you yourself or a loved one was in a situation where you were suffering and terminally ill, wouldn't you want the option to end the suffering and die with dignity I know I would.
