Explanation

The amendment increases the amount of sick time employees may use to take service animal training. There is a potential cost to the state and municipalities if an employee takes the maximum amount of sick time allowed, and another employee earns overtime covering any shifts. Any cost is expected to be minimal.

Additionally, the amendment requires the Commission on Human Rights and Opportunities to post certain information on its web site information, which is not anticipated to result in a fiscal impact.

Lastly, the amendment makes other changes to laws relating to service animals, which have no fiscal impact.
