

To Whom It May Concern,

I'm beyond horrified to learn that such an anti-Police bill has even been created in the state of CT. Did the person or people responsible give any thought whatsoever as to what the outcome would be?

There are good and bad people in EVERY profession, wouldn't you agree? To think that now that the attention (all controlled by the media, btw) has been focused on a bad cop, we have to make a broad sweeping changes to all police in our country goes against reason itself. Have you considered that if we do not have enough police available, citizens will start taking matters into their own hands. Is this what we want?

This is a very serious matter that should not be taken lightly. I hope and pray that everyone involved thinks long and hard and has the decency to rise above politics. I've been hopeful in thinking that CT would not sink to such an insane level. Please do not disappoint my family and the large majority of law-abiding citizens in what once was a great state.

Sincerely,

Brenda Peter
